

What's that loud vibrating noise?

Contributed by Administrator
Wednesday, 12 December 2007

Question:

What's that loud vibrating noise?

Answer:

Noises in plumbing supply lines are common. This occurs when you open and close taps in a rapid manner and can often be corrected by fastening or anchoring pipes more securely. Air chambers can be added at the end of long pipe runs to solve the problem and our professionals will take care of this installation and everything else for you.